Global competency for all

Globally competent University of Minnesota faculty, staff, and students will demonstrate the skills, knowledge, and perspectives necessary to understand the world and work effectively to improve it.

This definition was created from responses to the question, “What does global competency mean to you?,” posed to participants at the 2010 Internationalizing the Curriculum and Campus Conference.
Internationalizing the Curriculum and Campus

“One department alone cannot do this work, nor can one initiative or program. It is the sum of the many experiences our students will have while they are on our campuses that matter.”

— Provost Karen Hanson

International Student Barometer (ISB)

Overview

The purpose of this report is to provide an overview of the University of Minnesota's international student population and to highlight key findings from the International Student Barometer (ISB). The ISB is a survey that measures the satisfaction and experiences of international students studying in the United States. The report includes data on student demographics, academic performance, and perceptions of the university's international student program.
