

Black Lives Matter and the Challenge of Faculty Retention

Friday, August 21, 2020, 2:00-3:00 pm ET

Matthew Kinservik will start things off with a brief overview of some of the challenges the University of Delaware is facing. Then we will have a presentation by Jessica Bennett, Assistant Director of STEM Education at APLU. She serves as the Project Manager for the Aspire Alliance's IChange Network initiative, a National Science Foundation-funded program focused on enhancing institutional capacity to recruit, retain, and develop a more diverse and inclusive STEM faculty. Finally, Kiernan Matthews, Executive Director and Principal Investigator at COACHE, will share with us some of COACHE's insights regarding faculty retention. As always, we will have plenty of time for Q&A and discussion.

Panel:

Jessica Bennett, Assistant Director of STEM Education, APLU

Matthew Kinservik, Vice Provost for Faculty Affairs, University of Delaware

Kiernan Matthews, Executive Director and Principal Investigator, COACHE
