Re: COVID-19 Limited Liability Protections

Dear Speaker Pelosi, Minority Leader McCarthy, Leader McConnell, and Minority Leader Schumer:

On behalf of the American Council on Education and the undersigned higher education associations, I am writing today to urge you to quickly enact temporary and targeted liability protections related to the COVID-19 pandemic. While these crucial protections are likely necessary for many sectors of the American economy, this letter focuses on the need to safeguard higher education institutions and systems, affiliated nonprofits, and healthcare providers and facilities from excessive and speculative lawsuits arising out of the pandemic.

Encouraging, enabling, and supporting the safe reopening of college and university campuses for in-person learning is essential to educating our nation's future workforce, preserving employment for millions, and helping restart America's economy. As colleges and universities contemplate whether and how to safely reopen this fall, their overriding concern is keeping students, faculty, staff, and local communities safe. These decisions are not premised on making a trade-off between safety and the economy. Nor are institutions of higher education seeking a free pass to avoid responsibility, much less immunize themselves for their own or others' bad acts.

But as colleges and universities assess how quickly and completely campuses can resume full operations, they are facing enormous uncertainty about COVID-19-related standards of care and corresponding fears of huge transactional costs associated with defending against COVID-19 spread lawsuits, even when they have done everything within their power to keep students, employees, and visitors safe. To blunt the chilling effect this will have on otherwise reasonable decision-making leading to our nation's campuses resuming operations in a safe and sensible manner, we ask that Congress quickly enact temporary COVID-19-related liability protections for higher education institutions and systems, affiliated entities, as well as their faculty, staff and volunteers. These protections should be conditioned on following applicable public health standards, and they should preserve recourse for those harmed by truly bad actors who engage in egregious misconduct.

Colleges and universities, including their health care facilities and research enterprises, are engaged in every sector of critical infrastructure necessary to support American communities. In addition to educating and training our country's future workforce, they provide health services, cultural resources, spectator sports venues, and recreational amenities to their communities. Our medical schools, teaching hospitals, and research labs are working around the clock to find the best treatments and vaccines for COVID-19. Moreover, our higher education institutions maintain full service utilities, telecommunications, and computing networks; they provide housing and food services; and they operate transportation networks, hotels, retail shops, daycares, gyms, and museums. To support this broad array of activities, they directly employ tens of thousands of skilled workers in various trades, from electricians and linemen to plumbers and HVAC technicians; from landscapers and painters to carpenters and fabricators.

Unfortunately, all colleges and universities, two- and four-year, public and private nonprofit, are facing unprecedented challenges as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. The impact on the operations and revenues of many institutions has been catastrophic, for some even existential, which has had a terrible ripple effect in communities large and small. The pandemic is also causing massive disruption to students and their families. Many are grappling with sudden changes to their financial circumstances.

In the wake of prior crises, Congress came together to pass timely and targeted liability protections with strong bipartisan support because lawmakers understood the acute economic threat of lawsuits at moments of maximum economic vulnerability. While Congress has acted to provide some limited COVID-related liability protections for volunteer healthcare providers and some manufacturers of PPE in the CARES Act, much more must be done. While some governors and state legislatures have enacted COVID-19 liability limitations, this is a national problem requiring a national solution.

Higher education's need for temporary and targeted liability protections and relief is clear. Now is the time for Congress to act.

Sincerely,
